Popping the Question.

From an article in the London Saturday Review on this absorbing question we quote as to different methods :

THE PLEA OF LONG ACQUAINTANCE. Of all the pleas, we think that of long acquaintance is the most discouraged by fiction, from Dumbigdikes downward. When Jeanie Deans is obliged to be explicit with her extraordinary lover. "I like another man better than you, and I canna marry ye," his astonishthan you, and I canna marry ye, and astonishment is quite natural. "Another man better than me. Jeanie! How is that possible, we man? ye hae kenned me sae long? Dumbiedikes had read no novels. He could not, therefore, understand why habit should not work the same results on both sides. Jeanie even, for the same reason, thought the argument plausible. Instead of confuting she ac cepted it. 'Ay, but, Laird, I kenned him langer.' It is this long acquaintance which at once makes Johnny Eames such a persevering suitor and renders his case hopeless. He can-not understand the force of a sudden fancy, and expects to supersede it. In fact, however, if he had come newly upon the scene he might have had some chance, but Lilly had known him long enough to be familiar, and it wouldn't do. She no longer cares for the other man, but he has shattered her as a tree shattered by a storm. "It is no longer a tree," she says, "but a fragment." He argues. "Then be my payment." "No, dear it cannot be." Perhaps long acquaintance and a readiness to be made use of and to put up with fragments induces contempt, as in the case of Major Dobbin and his Amelia. The man who falls into Toot's vein, and treats his own time, feelings, and exertions as "of no consequence," will not be accepted till the romance of life is exhausted. HOW YOUNG GUPPY PROCEEDED. Do our readers recall Mr. Guppy, the attorney's clerk in "Bleak House," whose delicate attention to his mother's habits does him so much honor? As a happy blend of the real and ideal his proposal deserves quoting at length though it meets with so chilling a return from the object of his passion:

"My present salary, Miss Summerson at Kenge & Carboz's, is two pounds a week .-My mother has property which takes the form of a small life annuity. She is eminently calculated for a mother-in-law. She has her failings, as who has not; but I never knew her to do it when company was present, at which time you may freely trust her with wine, spirits or malt liquors. Miss Summerson in the mildest language, I adore you. Would you be so kind as to allow me (as I may say) to file a declaration—to make an offer?" Mr. Guppy went dawn on his knees. I said, "Get up from that ridiculous position immediately, sir. or you will oblige me to ring the bell."

THE STRAIGHTFORWARD OFFER.

But, after all, the main use of this class of reading is in the vast scope and field it opens to the intelligent inquirer-the immense variety of alternatives, whether for warning or example which the pages of fiction hold out; for every lover in fiction furnishes material for one or the other. The unbounded choice is the thing, directed by that insight into character and temperament which it is the high office of the povelist to instill. Thus, the way of the the novelist to instill. Thus the use of the fer. It pleases simple women. "Anne Thomp-son, will you be my wife?" is the son, will you be my wife?" is the conventional Quaker's first word of love-making. She says "Yes." and the thing is settled. Also it is effective where the advantage of wealth or position is on the gentleman's side. Of Course, that he had no right to expect an answer to reasonable prices. such a question, he continued: "I have come C. BRAD here; dearest Grace, to ask you to be my wife.' But there is a confident abrubtness in this form that will not do under reversed circumstances. In opposition to this, some women are to be approached with timid, distant entreaty, as Tito to Romola: "If you will only let me say I love you-if you will only think me worth loving a little." Then there is the manly offer of heart and hand, which is perhaps of all the modes the most taken for granted by the outside unthinking world. "There is may hand," says Lucius Mason to Sophia Furnival, "There is my hand." says she, as they stand holding one and the says she, as they stand holding one and the says she, as they stand holding one and the says she, as they stand holding one and the says she, as they stand holding one and the says she, as they stand holding one and the says says she, as they stand holding one and the says says she, as they stand holding one and the says says she, as they stand holding one and the says says she, as they stand holding one and the says says she, as they stand holding one and the says says she, as they stand holding one and the says says she, as they stand holding one and the says says she, as they stand holding one and the says says she, as they stand holding one and the says says she says other palm to palm. He quite honest: she only able to reach the pitch of half honesty. Some times more point is made of the shape, and quality, and action of the hands; thus Felix Graham offers his broad right hand. "It you can take it, you cannot doubt my heart goes word, nor does she lift her eyes from the ground, but evry slowly she raises her little hand and allows her soft, slight fingers, etc.

SAM WELLER IS THE MODEL AFTER ALL.

The subject is too full—full to overflowing—for connected dieussion within our limits. We can but touch here and there upon some of its innumerable heads! But here it must be owned that fiction has not so much the advantage over fact as in hand-to-hand encounter. Perhaps the whole matter of a love letter ir condensed in Sam Weller's valentine: "Before I JOURNAL OF A YOUNG LADY of Virginia, 1782, by Emily V. Mason, Price St. densed in Sam Weller's valentine: "Before I see you I thought all women alike, but now must have been, for there ain't anybody like JOHN H. PARROTT, you, though I like you better than nothing at

with it," and the timied Madeline says not a word, nor does she lift her eyes from the ELEGANTHAIR adds a charm to the plain-est face; but when facled, features before agreeable lose their comeliness, and the whole expression is that of advancing age. This being a fact, it is not surprising that even injurious articles should have been prepared to supply the millions who wish to avoid premature gray hair. Under these circumstances it will scarcely be wondered at that NATTANS CRYSTAL DIS-COVERY should have met with such extraordinary success.

It is the only preparation furnishing a safe and reliable restorer for the hair; absolutely free from all poisonous and deleterious matter and without sediment, and thousands above thousands have availed themselves of it, not simply because it restores the color of the hair, but because it supplies nourishment. It feeds the roots of the hair, so that where decayed it becomes vigorous and healthy again. From all sections of the country orders and testimonials are received daily, speaking in the highest terms of its qualities as the only preparation that ever gave entire satisfaction. Those who have used CRYSTAL DISCOVERY will not use anything else; but to those who have not tried this excellent article it is recommended that when they are again in self, or the most experienced workmen. jan 2-tf | want of something of the kind to give it a trial; you will be more than pleased; you will be delighted with it, and will never again be without it.
